The magnificent Tower Bridge arches and stretches its way across the famous River Thames, providing a crossroad to the Tower of London, home of the Crown Jewels.

The proud yeoman that guards the Tower of London will remind you of days past, abounding with British tradition...ladies in waiting and gallant knights atop trusty steeds.

You may never leave the halls of the National Gallery as you browse in awe at masterpieces, works of art, and paintings...you need not be a great art appreciator to enjoy the National Gallery.

Where America began.

London...Kings and Queens, castles and thrones, the regal splendor of the British Empire.

By day, you'll see such legendary landmarks as the Tower of London, where Sir Thomas Moore and Anne Boleyn were beheaded, and the priceless Crown Jewels, guarded by the Yeomen Warders; Windsor Castle, with all its regal splendor; and Hampton Court, the palace-residence of Kings and Queens, with its Royal Gardens.

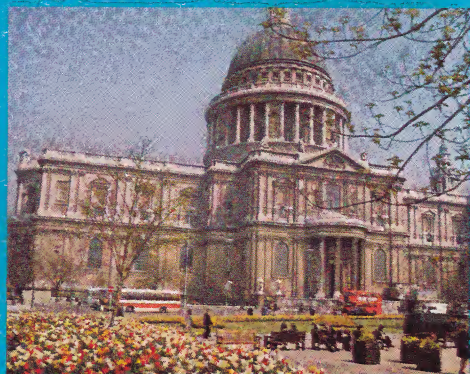

Drop by a typical English tavern for a "half" of bitters or a couple of ales. Join in a round of ballad singing and merry-making at the pub with friendly, jovial Londoners. Witness the colorful Changing of the Guard at Buckingham Palace, view the stately Westminster Abbey, and perhaps wander by #10 Downing Street, residence of Britain's Prime Minister. There's time to shop and browse through the many boutiques of London, including world-famous Carnaby Street, and time to linger over a gourmet dinner at one of London's elegant restaurants.

The grandeur of the Marble Arch reflects the pomp and pageantry of England.

Since 1066, Kings and Queens of England have been coronated amidst the walls of the famous Westminster Abbey. The coronation chair was made in 1300 AD.

The bells of St. Paul's echo throughout London Town, a history that surrounds the most famous cathedral of London.

A two-foot tall black fur hat, a stone face, and brilliant red jacket is the traditional uniform of Her Majesty's Royal Guards. Try to make one laugh...you never can!

Drive through the rolling countryside, stop for morning coffee at a charming wayside inn, and for afternoon tea at a cozy English inn. Visit William Shakespeare's birthplace in Stratford-on-Avon; explore the immense prehistoric Stonehenge monuments, and Runnymede, site of the signing of the Magna Carta.

When the sun goes down, you can swing into exciting London nightlife at discotheques featuring the most glamorous floor shows you've ever seen, and lively music for dancing. Or spend the evening at a sparkling, world-famous London theater such as the Paladium.

Your visit to the British Isles is jam-packed with fascinating sights, great nightlife, and some of the world's most delectable dining. An English adventure whose memory will stay with you forever! Come and join us.

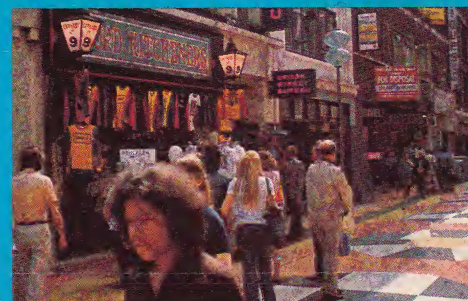

Walk back into history by simply passing the sentries going under the Horse Guards archway and on to the parade-ground where the rhythmic, synchronized marching of the Color Guard happens every day in a salute to the Royal Family.

Amidst bustling Londoners, double-decker buses, traffic rotaries and spouting fountains, Lord Nelson column stands proud and erect. From 182 feet high, Lord Nelson observes 20th Century Trafalgar Square.

London is known for its world famous shopping. The British atmosphere is great as you browse and shop on the fashionable Carnaby Street.

Riding on the top of a red double-decker bus is an inexpensive, fun-filled way to really see London.

Dear Harvard Alumna/us:

London is a beautiful and old city, and its attractiveness to the Harvard Traveler remains unique--a city to return to for its history, museums, theatre, and the exciting contrast of modernity and tradition, so peculiar to England.

You are invited to join the Associated Harvard Alumni for a one-week visit to London. We depart on a Jumbo DC-10 jet from New York and Boston on July 3, 1977.

This tour package offers a choice of two hotels. For the basic price you will stay at the Hotel Tara, in Kensington, with clean, first-class accommodations--similar to a Holiday Inn. For an additional cost, you can enjoy the deluxe Royal Lancaster Hotel, one of London's finest luxury hotels, conveniently located at Lancaster Gate, Hyde Park.

Although optional tours and sightseeing will be available, this is the perfect opportunity to visit London and to make it exactly the kind of trip you want it to be. You may arrange for non-Harvard friends to accompany you on this trip at a slightly higher price, and the airplane will have a limited number of seats available on an air-fare-only basis of $349.00.

Please join this congenial Harvard group on a wonderful trip to London. If you have any questions regarding this trip, please call the A.H.A. travel advisor, Robert Banker '58, collect at (617) 267-9818 or the travel agency, Trans National Travel, at (617) 262-9200.

Sincerely yours,

Peter D. Shultz
General Secretary of the Associated Harvard Alumni
